Lewis R. Stinson, great keeper of the records and seals for the Pythian order or Oregon, accounted by his fraternal brethren as a splendid type of Pythian and a jolly good fellow, "blew" into town yesterday afternoon, a trifle late for the golden jubilee of his order.

No wonder he was late. He put twenty boxes of fine Oregon apples on the train that brought him here to treat the "boys." Every time his coach was shifted he wondered if his apples would get lost in the shuffle. There were several delays, but every apple came in with him and the "boys" evidently enjoyed them.

Mr. Stinson also brought a thousand bronze medallions of the great seal of Oregon made into watch charms and distributed them among his friends. He was given an ovation last night at the New Willard.

Ice an inch thick covers the Putomaa River from Great Falls down as far as Bryans Point. The coating, however, is not solid all the way, the river current in places being too strong for the cold snap of yesterday to freeze.

The thawing out Thursday caused the river to rise north of Washington, but little or no effect has been noted in the city. The cold snap of yesterday froze over the snow and slush, causing the river's level to drop slightly from Thursday's mark.

Miss Westcott Favors Enlargement and Removal of Lunch Room from Basement.

Declaring hygienic conditions 'bad," that there is inadequate space for pupils, and that laws of the District seriously affect the efficiency of Western principal, last night told the Home and School Association that the Commission-ers should be asked to request Congress for an emergency appropriation to remedy

"My plan is to enlarge the school from its present capacity of 700 to 1,000 pupils by constructing a roof garden, where we can have open classes," said Miss Westcott. "We could establish our lunchroom on the roof and wipe out the unhygienic conditions in the basement, where the lunchroom now is. The kitchen now is next to the furnace room, and the cooks are sick half of the time.

"Our school plant now is running far above its capacity. There is a law that no class should contain less than ten members. Recently one pupil dropped from a class of ten, and to obey the law we had to break up that class. I also advocate the establishment of a manual training department for Western. "I think we should have a day nursery in the school, so the girls might learn how to care for bables. I berrowed a baby recently and kept it at the school. Mothers and fathers would have been as-tonished to see the effect on their sons and daughters. Our girls should be manued by having to care for hables."

Miss Westcott deplored the lack of current information gathered by the pupils.
